FAIR FIELD
JUNIOR SCHOOL

Dear Parents & Carers,

Please accept my apologies for the untimely delivery of the newsletter. At the back end of last week I attended a Hertfordshire Headteachers' conference. It was an excellent chance to share good practice with other schools and hear from many inspirational speakers. Hearing the positive comments colleagues had to say about Fair Field filled me with pride and we endeavor to keep providing an enriching and exciting primary school experience for all our pupils. Last week the children thoroughly enjoyed preparing their costumes for the carnival in the workshops with Simone Williams and we look forward to our celebration day after half term. Thank you to those parents who managed to source canvas shoes, we recognise for many it was no easy task and apologies we weren't able to anticipate this. Well done also to our cross country runners and Year 5 Band performers, who all put on a great display in their respective fields. Performing at the Royal Collage of Music was a true honour and we thank Brass Band England immensely for the opportunity. Tomorrow and Wednesday there is the opportunity to virtually connect with your child's teacher to talk about the academic year to date, combined with the progress they are making with their learning. If you have not yet made a meeting yet, please call the office as soon as possible to arrange a time.

Wishing you a super last week of this half term!

Mrs Goodwin & The Fair Field Team

Brass Band Trip

Last Sunday, our Year 5 cornet players experienced a full day of singing, percussion and performing at the Royal Collage of Music. What a splendid place to perform!

Cross Country

Congratulations to our determined, resilient cross country runners on completing the tough 2km course last week! We are awaiting the overall announcements from the Sports Partnership.

Nobel Prizes

Today in assembly the children were learning about the six different Nobel Prizes and encouraged to learn more about one of the winners to share with others. We discussed feeling proud of your strengths and talents.
